

Tákos – the Lutheran church

Tákos is a village in Szabolcs-Szatmár-Bereg county, in the Northern Great Plain region of eastern Hungary. The Lutheran church and its wooden bell tower is worth to see, when you visit the beautiful village. The village is also famous because of its folk art, especially needlework art of "beregí keresztzemes" textile style. The bare-footed one Notre-Dame a called reformed church was being built in 1766. The wattle and daub wall, shingled building is the Upper area churches' last herald. His ceiling and his furniture looked rich. The bare-footed one for Notre-Dame the Lutheran church was built in 1766. The wattle and daub wall, shingled building the Upper area churches last herald. His ceiling and his furniture looks rich.

Made by:
Galambvári Zsófia